League: AMBHL
Date: October 21, 2009
Teams: Calgary Bronks - 5
At: Calgary Royals Gold - 4

Synopsis: This was a fun game to watch. Both teams played a hard aggressive game. The action was back and forth throughout with the Bronks getting the edge simply by having player like Jamal Watson and Cole Ully, who shoot the puck on net from anywhere.

Although they were badly outshot 15-4 in the first period, the Royals led 2-1 until the Bronks scored with seven seconds remaining. The Royals took over in the second but were not able to pull away from the Bronks as the score at the end of two was 4-4.

The third period saw much of the same back and forth action as the previous two frames. The Bronks took over during the last ten minutes but the turning point was when speedy Royals forward, Tanner Ockey got a breakaway from centre. Tanner pulled away from Bronks defender, made a nice move but was stopped by Nick Crisanti. Minutes later, with under a minute to go the Bronks' defender Griffin Mumby scored the game winner.
