Physical Description (Injuries, Glasses, etc.)

GRADUATION 2013

He has long, sturdy legs and a short torso. Thick legs and stocky form create awkward running motion. Wide shoulders and long arms. No previous injuries or mention of discomfort.

Abilities

Consistent motion with no stops or hitches in the delivery. Throws fourseam fastball with good command. His best pitch is a change-up and changes the sequence of slider, curveball, and fastball. Pitches show movement across the plate.

Weaknesses

At the end of his delivery, his leg finishes in an outward position. This position is not adequate for fielding and makes defense below average. Few swings and misses with a high contact rate. Strikeout rate is also relatively low compared to major league average.

Summation and SignabilityWorth $250,000 Will He Sign YesWill Sign For $250,000

Below average velocity on his fourseam fastball, but above average change-up with slider and curveball mixed into pitch sequence. Due to low strike-out rate and high contact rate, will likely be a fourth or fifth starter. Leg position at end of delivery could be an issue in the future. I would like to select him in the sixth round if available.
